

EAR COAL FAMINE FOR COMING WINTER

Unless Consumers Hasten to Make Orders Now and Keep the Mines Working.

WISE TO WAIT LONGER

Prices Promise to Increase Each Month, Instead of Getting Lower.

Special to The World.
McALESTER, April 26.—Stacks in the mining of coal at this time is bringing the people of Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas, Arkansas and Colorado dangerously near the famine point with reference to a supply of fuel this coming winter, according to the coal operators in the field. Whether these operators are to have enough coal to keep them warm next winter is just now entirely up to the individual. He is wise and puts in his order this time, takes delivery and stores coal, thereby aiding in keeping the mines running at something near the proper time to give the miner a living wage and the consumer at the right rate to supply the domestic consumer, there will be plenty of coal for everybody this coming winter. Should Mr. Domestic consumer put off the ordering of his coal for even six weeks longer, according to the operators, he is going to run into a shortage this fall and winter that will make the famine of the winter of 1917 look like a comfortable winter season. In fact, unless the individual consumers awaken to the necessity of ordering their coal at this time, operators warn the shortage this coming winter will be worse than anything of the kind experienced in the United States since 1902, at which time, it will be remembered, the miners' strike stopped production everywhere. Any thought which the consumer may have with reference to waiting coal at a cheaper price by waiting may just as well be laid aside now, declare the operators. On the contrary, the prices on coal will advance 10 cents per ton on May 1, and 10 cents a month per ton thereafter until September 1.

Beginning May 1, production of coal must increase nearly one hundred fold, say the operators, if a famine is to be avoided, an analysis of the output since the signing of armistice showing that it has fallen off, aided and abetted by mild winter, to a point where there is hardly any reserve on hand at this time. In fact, barely 50 per cent. of the full time production of normal times has been mined since November 1, 1918. This means that unless the "buy early" slogan is lived up to from now on, every little improvement of conditions can be expected, and with the normal increase in demand of coal from year to year, a serious situation is facing the country.

By The Associated Press.
COBLENZ, Friday, April 25.—What might have been the last official review of troops in Germany was held yesterday afternoon when the men of the 90th division marched past General Pershing after they had been inspected by the commander in chief on the Rhine. Gen. Hugh McAlexander was decorated with the distinguished service crosses were awarded. The colors of the infantry regiments and the machine gun and engineer battalions were also decorated. The 90th is known as the Texas and Oklahoma division, the majority of its members being national army from those states, although there are many men in the ranks from Iowa and Illinois. The review of the 90th completes the reviews of the army of occupation. The function is taken by the men to indicate that the 90th will board trains on the first stage of their journey home probably not more than a month from now.

EXPECT BOLSHEVISM TO BURN OUT SOON

When Food and Supplies Are Exhausted Lenin's Devilish Structure Will Crumble.

LONDON, April 26 (By Mail).—The present configuration in Russia cannot last. Without fuel, in the form of food and supplies generally, Bolshevism must burn itself out.

Such is the opinion of an Englishman who left Moscow February 9, and has just reached London. "I find in this country," he said, "a general impression that the Bolshevik leaders are nothing but violent criminals and robbers. But they have other qualifications as well, such as organizing ability, ruthless decision and the power to rule."

"Public opinion as to the advantages of bolshevism is widely divergent. Those who have secured through the revolution a comfortable income, with a monthly salary of perhaps 1,500 rubles in one of the innumerable governmental departments which exist in every town, are not anxious to upset the present order of things. On the other hand, speculators and peasants who through the misfortunes of the aristocratic and bourgeois classes, have lined their pockets, are now rather inclined to clamor for a more stable and constitutional form of government which would enable them to keep what they have unjustly gained."

Let George Do It.
"As a whole, however, the people are apathetic, and though many of them will confide to you that they dislike bolshevism and desire its downfall, yet I doubt very much if they would be ready to give personal assistance to any such movement."

Lack of food is the greatest danger the bolsheviks have to face. Bread and other commodities are becoming scarcer every day. "Habitual socialism is the order, and everything is commandeered and sold on a voucher system through a few shops managed by the workers and red army committees."

The Britisher brought the first news to London of the fact that about 40 British naval and military prisoners of war, captured on the north Russian front, were now in captivity in Moscow. The officers are confined in small cells, but the men, he said, are permitted to move freely about the city and may even visit British residents. They are provided with better food than other prisoners and with warm clothing. Evidently the bolsheviks, in the opinion of this Englishman, are trying by means of preferential treatment to their side.

Upward Go Savings

It is almost impossible to believe the ratio of increase in savings deposits in the Exchange National since the armistice was signed.

During the war (not counting the Victory loan) patrons of the Exchange National bought more than $22,000,000 in government securities.

In doing this they LEARNED THE HABIT OF THRIFT.

Just Look at these Figures

Individual Savings Deposits

April 6, 1917 .....	$399,626.60
November 11, 1918 ..	779,971.41
April 1, 1919 .....	974,906.47

April 6 was the date of the declaration of war. November 11 was the date of the Armistice.

These figures tell the story. They apply only to small savings accounts and do not include certificates of deposit.

They show that when folks buy Victory Bonds and War Savings Stamps they teach themselves the value of thrift. Saving becomes a habit.
